

SERVICE CLUB PARTY BIG SUCCESS

No Reason For Suicide Of New Lenox Girl Made

Why Catherine Ruby Hanuski, 15 year old Joliet High school freshman put the first shot she ever fired thru her heart Thursday night in her home in New Lenox, remained unanswered Friday in the Gerald S. Dames undertaking parlors, Joliet where a coroner's jury returned a verdict of death with suicidal intent.

Possible motives developed by the testimony were the approaching separation from her 17-year old fiance, Harold Mattson, scheduled to leave Wednesday for the navy; scoldings from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hansuki, or self pity when she returned from her first day at high school to find dinner over, her parents on the verge of departing for a show, the younger children going to a neighbor's and she being admonished to stay home and wash the dishes.

The fatal shooting interrupted a teen-age romance in which young Mattson whose picture was found on the deathbed, from whose mattress the bullet was recovered yesterday, had given the girl a ring, which she had once returned, but subsequently accepted, as a token of their engagement, he testified yesterday.

Other witnesses were the girl's parents, and her little 11-year old sister, Dorothy, a miniature of her mother, who discovered the body when she returned to the Hansuki home on an errand; and Roy Doerfler, deputy sheriff.

Mr. Hanuski identified the gun as one he habitually kept hidden in a dresser drawer thru which the girl appears to have rifled in a search for the weapon under the clothes. Although testimony disclosed that the girl had never been seen to handle firearms, she had watched her father, and, apparently, loaded the weapon, mastered its complicated mechanism, and drove home the first bullet she had ever released. The pistol, the father said, he used in the trapping season.

A gun cabinet containing several weapons stood open after the shooting, it was revealed, although Mr. Hanuski said it was always kept locked and that he had its key in his pocket. A hairpin, he said, might have opened it. He testified that the girl was perennially happy, had no enemies, had received only minor reprimands from her parents for failure to let them know her whereabouts or for returning home late, and had been in normal spirits when they left the house Thursday night.

Little Dorothy, in a red and white candy-stripe print, blue coat and white shoes, gave crisp answers to Coroner E. A. Kingston as he queried her about discovering the body.

"I saw my sister lying on the bed," she testified, "I hollered at her and then ran and told a neighbor, George Johnson, who returned with me. He turned on the light and I screamed, 'Oh my God, my father's gun.' When the doctor got there, she said it was too late."

Young Mattson said that the girl had not appeared morose when he left her after his 17th birthday party Wednesday night, that she was moved by his impending departure into the navy, but said if it was all right, that she had not talked about breaking their engagement and that they had had no lover's quarrel. His ring, it developed, she was wearing at the time of her death.

His picture in a blue frame with the legend "Remember Me" was introduced, it with that of Mattson's younger brother, Russell, were on the deathbed when the body was found.

Mrs. Hanuski said that the girl had never been a problem child, and that there had never been any serious difficulty over the hours she kept or her absence from home, and nothing in their relations to justify her taking her life.

All the witnesses testified that there were no indications of a struggle in the room and Coroner that there were no marks on the body indicating a struggle. Stains Kingston and Deputy Doerfler said on the girl's fingers, Dr. Kingston said, might have been from ink used in her first day at high school, or might have been powder burns from the back flash of the gun.

Hugh Bolton was foreman of the coroner's jury, whose members were N. J. Fornango, former chief of police, Harry Watson, Isaac Barro, George Tappell and Adolph Randolph.

The funeral was held Monday morning at 10 o'clock at the Gerald Dames funeral home, with burial in Mt. Olivet cemetery, Joliet.

WILL FUNCTION AGAIN

The Literature and Library Department of the Tinley Park Women's Club will function again this year under the leadership of Mrs. R. C. Hannum and her co-chairman Mrs. James Aden. The first meeting will be at 1:30, Thursday, September 23 at the Hannum residence.

Mokena Civic Group To Sponsor Cash Bingo

At 8 o'clock Saturday evening, September 25, Mokena's big night of Bingo will get under way. The affair, to which every one in this and neighboring communities is cordially invited, is being held to raise additional funds for Christmas boxes and gifts for our men in the Armed Services.

Net proceeds of the evening of fun are going to the Mokena Women's Service Club, who are handling the big job involved in preparing, packing, and mailing the gift boxes.

Refreshments will be served by members of the Women's Service Club, the proceeds from this activity also to be used to further the Club's work. The affair is sponsored by the Mokena Civic Association.

Of course, if you attend, you'll take satisfaction in the thought that you are lending a helping hand to something really worthwhile. But in addition, you're sure to come away with the feeling that you've had a whale of a good time as well. We'll be seeing you—Saturday evening, September 25, 8 o'clock.

BERNADINE BAILEY, AUTHORESS, TO ADDRESS TINLEY PARK WOMEN'S CLUB

The Tinley Park Women's Club will open their club season this year next Wednesday afternoon, September 22, at 2:00 o'clock in the Village Hall.

This is President's Day, and that is always a most important occasion, and especially so this year, as the Club has new president, and each new president is accorded proper honor on that day. Nine neighboring Women's Clubs have been invited, as well as women of Tinley Park who are interested in Women's Club work.

Another reason for this meeting being important, is that the speaker of the afternoon is outstanding, and Tinley Park is proud to have the honor of having Bernadine Bailey of Chicago, President of the Illinois Women's Press Association, and an authoress, come to their club and address them. Her subject will be: "Behind the Scenes With An Author."

Mrs. Bailey has written twenty-one books, the latest one being, "The Youngest Wac". Some of the books which she has written are: "White Moccasins", a story of Fort Dearborn, "Abraham Lincoln's Mother", a story of Sarah Bush Lincoln. It will be a real joy to hear Mrs. Bailey speak as her personality is most appealing.

This meeting is under the departments of Literature and Press and Publicity, with Mrs. Roy C. Hannum and Mrs. Wm. Semmler, chairmen respectively. The Officers of the Club will be hostesses.

This is a day when every member will want to be present and each new member will want to join at this time.

MOKENA LADIES BOWLING LEAGUE OPENS SEASON

This will be a chance to spend a day a month for 6 months to help know current events.

NEW LENOX USO TO SPONSOR DANCE, CARD AND BINGO PARTY

The New Lenox United Service Club will sponsor a Dance, card party and bingo in the New Lenox school auditorium, on Saturday, September 25. Music will be by the Local band. A $25 War bond will be given as a Door prize. This entertainment will be given for the purpose of sending Christmas boxes to the local servicemen.

Famous Family Coming To Frankfort Church September 23

The Fetler family born in five different countries, during a militant and unceasing struggle to spread the principles of Christianity throughout eastern Europe will appear at St. Peter's Evang. church at Frankfort, Thursday, September 23, at 7:30 p.m., Rev. Erich Bizer pastor, announced today.

The eight children of Rev. and Mrs. Vaseely Andreyevich Fetler present a message in song and words that is inspirational in its sincerity and beauty. They have given more than 700 concerts in many countries.

Rev. Fetler, who was persecuted by officers of the Czar and who was later exiled from Russia, is known for his work in Eastern Europe where he founded 120 churches, mainly in Latvia and Poland. Daniel Fetler, the eldest son, who is a student at Northwestern University, Illinois, will discuss briefly "Christianity in Soviet Russia".

Mokena Royal Blue Store Moves Into New Quarters

The main business section of Mokena on Front street has been much improved and enlivened by the opening of the Royal Blue Store of Irvin Howes in the former Sippel store building which has been closed since the death of Elmer Sippel.

Mr. Howes who purchased this property some time ago has made quite extensive interior improvements and has also decorated the front of the building with a gleaming white front. Mr. Howes has opened a real up-to-date grocery and market which does credit to Mokena and he will endeavor to serve his patrons in the best possible way by way of stock and reasonable prices.

Mr. Howes has rented his former store quarters and dwelling. The eastern portion of Front street looks quite deserted with the Werner Hardware store out of business as well as the Muehler Market, the former Royal Blue store quarters vacant and the former Krapp store vacant.

GLENN FOLKERS ATTENDING NATIONAL MEETING

Glenn Folkers, of Frankfort, rural Letter Carriers National Secretary, is attending a national executive meeting in Washington, D. C.

TINLEY MAN GRADUATES AS RADIO OPERATOR

Another class of qualified radio operators has been graduated at Fort Knox, Ky. by the Communication Department of the Armored school. Graduates include, Pfc. Walter Joseph Russo, son of Mrs. Suzanne McLosa, R. 1, Tinley Park.

Each soldier in the course learned the International Morse Code, the "dit-dat" alphabet and progressed through radio procedure and a study of radio sets. Final phase was field operation, in which radio sets are operated from scout cars under simulated battle conditions.

The school rolls off its human assembly lines each year many times more trained technicians than any civilian university or college in the world.

Jeanette Eisenbrandt Marries Navy Man

Marriage vows were exchanged by Miss Jeanette Eisenbrandt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Eisenbrandt, Lockport, Ill. and Lee Spencer, Seaman First Class, USNR, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Spencer of Lockport on September 4 in St. Mark's Lutheran church at Boston, Mass. with the Rev. Wm. B. Sadtler officiating.

A street length dress of white wool with navy accessories was worn by the bride. Her corsage was of stephanotis and white roses.

Miss Dorothea Eisenbrandt attended her sister as maid of honor and Miss Irene Ebert of Mokena was the bridesmaid.

Attending the groom were James Nau, USNR, and Arthur Mondry, BM 3-c USNR.

Mrs. Spencer will reside in the home of her parents temporarily.

Mrs. Henry Klepper of Frankfort Dies

Mrs. Minnie Klepper, aged 71 years, widow of Henry Klepper of Frankfort, died Wednesday morning at her home following a heart attack. Surviving are six daughters.

Miss Geneva Klepper, Mrs. Emma Baade, Frankfort, Mrs. Martha Krause, Aurora, Mrs. Hilda Lovejoy, Roscoe, Ill. Mrs. Adolphine Traube, Montgomery, Ill. Mrs. Alma Eckdorf, Joliet, 4 brothers, Wm. Henry, Frankfort, John, Joliet and Herman Monee, three sisters, Mrs. Ida Rampke, Mrs. Emma Creg, Mrs. Louise Yager, Chicago, 17 grandchildren and 4 great-grandchildren.

The deceased was born in Germany and at the age of 10 came with her parents to America. In 1887, she was united in marriage with Henry Klepper and has resided in the Frankfort community ever since. Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at the late home at 1:30 o'clock and at St. Peter's Evang. church at 2 o'clock with Rev. Erich Bizer officiating. Burial will be in Pleasant Hill cemetery, Frankfort.

MOONLIGHT DANCE AT FRANKFORT GYM SAT. NIGHT

A moonlight dance will be held in the Frankfort school gym, Saturday evening. There will be old time dances, waltzes, square dances, etc. A good time for all.

George Meyer of Tinley Park who is sponsoring this dance will sponsor a barn dance at the Saenger hall in Tinley Park, October 17. Guy Colby, popular WLS square dance caller will be in charge. A fine time is always assured at these dances.

HOLD OPEN HOUSE IN HONOR OF MRS. SARAH VOLK'S 92ND BIRTHDAY

Open house was held Sunday in the home of Mrs. Sarah Volk near Orland Park, to honor her 92nd birthday. Guests at dinner were her brother and sister, Mrs. Nicholas Marti of Mokena and Daniel Lauffer of Joliet, and also I. D. Marti of Mokena, and Geo. Volk, her son. Mrs. Volk's daughter, Mrs. Josephine Sayers of New Lenox served the dinner. Many friends and relatives called during the afternoon. Many lovely cards and flowers were received by the honored one.

ORLAND COMMUNITY COM. TO SPONSOR OLD FASHIONED SQUARE DANCE

The Orland Community Committee are making plans for an Old Fashioned Square Dance to be held in the School Gymnasium Saturday evening, October 9. Guy Colby, nationally known square dance caller of WLS will be Master of Ceremonies and will give personal instruction in the various phases and movements of this interesting dance to all who care to receive them from 8 to 9 p.m. preceeding the regular dance program.

TINLEY PARK TAG DAY BRINGS GOOD RETURNS FOR SOLDIER XMAS GIFTS

In behalf of the Boys in Service, the Citizens Service Committee of Tinley Park wishes to thank the Community for the wonderful response to our Tag Day last Saturday. It is gratifying to the members of the committee to have such co-operation from our Citizens in our efforts to keep our Boys in close contact with their friends at home. The proceeds for the day were $402.17. Watch for our financial report, which will be published soon for more details. A report like this should keep our boys smiling a while, until they get their Christmas boxes. We now have 129 names on the list.

Chas. A. Wallin, Chairman, H. R. Freitag, Secretary.

TINLEY WOMAN'S CLUB AMONG VICTORY GARDEN SHOW RIBBON WINNERS

The Tinley Park Woman's Club are proud to be numbered among the Ribbon winners at the recent Victory Garden Show, held in the Chicago Stadium.

The club entered a very interesting table display in Group 3 of the Home Grown Vegetables and Fruits. There were many exhibits by both Commercial and Amateur growers. The show attracted many thousands of people and was considered a huge success although it was the first of its kind to be held in Cook County. There were over 1000 cans of Home Canned Vegetables and Fruits shown. All the vegetables and flowers displayed were donated to charity at the close of the show.

Mrs. Walter Eichelberg is the American Home and Garden chairman of the club.

TINLEY BOARD AMENDS TAVERN CLOSING ORDINANCE

The Tinley Park village board at their meeting Monday night voted to amend their tavern closing ordinance so the taverns may remain open until 1 a.m. instead of closing at midnight, on week days and until 2 a.m. on Saturday nights.

BOMBING OF ROME

Pope Pius XII was completely cooperative with the Allies the first time Rome was bombed, but not the second time. Inside fact is that he called in Harold Tittman, American charge d'affaires to the Vatican, and protested in the strongest language. He gave Tittman a scorching scolding.

Reason for the Pope's ire was that on August 11, Tittman had informed him that Rome could be recognized as an open city by the unilateral declaration of Italy.

As a result, the Pope understood that Rome was an open city and apparently so informed Marshal Badoglio. The Pope was acting as intermediary for the Italian Government. Both he and Badoglio, therefore, apparently rested on Tittman's assurances and considered Rome an open city.

That was why the Pope was so indignant when, despite his earlier conversation with Tittman, Rome was bombed again.

Whether the State Department failed to communicate Tittman's message to General Eisenhower in order to head off the second bombing was something on which State Department officials declined to comment.

However, one explanation probably was that a city cannot be declared "open" by a unilateral declaration. Neutral observers must enter the city and definitely ascertain that troops, munitions works, airfields, and government offices have been removed.

This had not been done following Tittman's first conversation with the Pope, and that was why General Eisenhower bombed Rome again.

PRIORITY OF DANGER

Behind the closed doors of the OCD in Washington, plans for the civilian defense of the country are being revised. The new plans take into account the decreasing likelihood of attack, and the growing public indifference to black-outs and bomb shelters.

War chiefs insist the danger of attack has not passed, but they admit there is no point in whipping up the public to a frenzy of fear, especially in the safer areas.

They have now divided the country roughly into three zones, with the following "priority of danger"—1. Pacific Coast, 2. Atlantic Coast, 3. Interior areas.

The coastal areas are 200 miles deep, so that everything 200 miles inland is "interior" and relatively safe. The Pacific coast is regarded as more dangerous than the Atlantic, because the Japs are both uncontrolled and unpredictable.

When the revision is finally ironed out, public announcements will be made, and there will be a general relaxation of defense activities. But OCD will insist that the minimum measures of protection shall be ready for the siren.

Decision to relax the program was difficult for OCD, since it meant a scaling down of personnel, and a loss of jobs throughout the organization.

AIR FORCE DUPLICATION

Advocates of a single air force point to the manpower saving that might be accomplished, right under the noses of the Chiefs of Staff, if army air forces and naval aviation were combined.

On the edge of Washington, separated only by the Potomac river, are the army's Bowling Field and the navy's air base at Anacostia. Both fields are equipped with many of the same facilities, and those facilities are manned by forces which duplicate each other.

Each field has its own radio tower and radio staff; each has its separate communication staff, its own meteorological bureau and staff, its own medical staff, its own supply depot—and a dozen other services required at a big air field.

A single air force, combining both army and navy, would do away with this duplication both of equipment and personnel.

They Scared Japanese Troops From Kiska

Moving speedily and cautiously, American and Canadian troops are pictured as they neared the island of Kiska on the first day of operations there. They are transferring to a landing craft. The Japanese, in their first such action of the war, made no attempt to defend the island. They fled, allowing the Allies to take it without a battle. According to Vice Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid, commander of the North Pacific forces, the fall of Kiska puts America in an offensive rather than a defensive position in the Aleutians. This new victory makes the use of land based bombers against Jap bases in the Kurile islands more feasible.

THE SIN OF MOSES AND AARON

LESSON TEXT—Numbers 20:1-13, 27, 28.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye angry, and sin not.—Ephesians 4:26.

Sin is a serious matter, and even though men in our day may not call it by its real name, it is as much here as it was in the days of Moses—and it is just as awfully sinful as ever.

Sin is universal; it appears not only among the people, but also among their leaders. God's dealing with it is on the basis of "greater privilege, greater responsibility." No leader, especially in God's cause, can expect special consideration of his weakness. He must meet God and answer for his sin.

I. The Unbelief of the People (vv. 1-5).

It is well to bear in mind that the people of Israel who were now at Kadesh-Barnea, on the borderland of Canaan, had been here once before—40 years before. Here they had rebelled against God in unbelief because of the report of the spies concerning the land. Because of their unwillingness to take God at His word, they had been sent to wander 40 years in the wilderness until the complainers had died. Read that graphic and instructive story in Numbers 13 and 14.

Now they were back at Kadesh—and a new generation shows that the spirit of unbelief and distrust has a hold on humanity, and makes son like father.

They had run short of water. The spring which had served their fathers on the previous visit to Kadesh had run dry.

One would have supposed that all the mighty dealings of God in their deliverances over and over again, would have indicated the need of faith; but they had only a wailing criticism of God and His leaders.

II. The Answer—God's Power (vv. 6-8).

Moses and Aaron, now old men but still God's chosen leaders, took their sorrow to Him (v. 6). It was the right place to go, for power becometh unto the Lord (Ps. 62:11).

Instead of punishing the people for their unbelief, God calls upon His servant Moses to show them that He (God) is able. At a word from Moses, the rock would bring forth water before their eyes.

Is not that the perfect answer to all man's questioning and lack of faith—the revelation of the omnipotence of God?

But God's purpose is defeated (at least in a measure) by the

III. Unbelief of the Leaders (vv. 9-11).

Instead of taking their place as the servants and subordinates of God, Moses and Aaron claimed that they would provide water (v. 10). Instead of showing God's power by speaking to the rock, and His mercy in providing for the people, they uttered a rebuke; and then, by smiting the rock, took to themselves the honor that really belonged to God.

When called upon to act for God, they acted for themselves, and in their own name. They used for their own glory the power delegated to them by God. Let us beware that we do not fall into the same error.

Let us also note that if the punishment seems severe, we should recall that they had broken a type of Christ. Christ was the Rock. He was to be smitten at Calvary, that the water of life might flow forth. But He died once for sin (I Cor. 10:4) and is not to be smitten again. We need now only speak to Him in faith and receive life.

In Exodus 17:5, 6, Moses smote the rock, presenting the first half of the type foreshadowing the work of Christ; now he was to speak to it, fulfilling the type, and in unbelief he destroyed God's picture or type of redemption. It was a grievous sin.

IV. The Answer—Judgment (vv. 12, 13, 27, 28).

Moses and Aaron were not to be permitted to enter the promised land, because of their failure. No doubt it was true that their departure to be with the Lord was in a sense "far better" for them; and yet it cannot be denied that there was disappointment in not seeing the conclusion of their long and arduous labors.

The lesson is clear. We may serve God long and faithfully, but that is not any excuse for "letting down" in our closing years. We dare not presume, as though our intimate touch with God and place of leadership gave us an "inside track," a right to take it easy, spiritually or morally.

Sin is always sin; and it is especially grievous in one who has the privilege of high position and of power with God.

God buried His workmen; but His work went on. For Aaron there was his son Eleazar (v. 28). For Moses there was a Joshua, "full of the spirit of wisdom" (Deut. 34:9). It is always so. None of us is indispensable.

NO MATTER if you move from a spacious house to a single room there are certain treasures that will mean home to you. A few books, a piece of china and some perfectly useless but cheering bits of bric-a-brac—by all means take them with you and make a dramatic setting for them.

A shadow box cupboard will do the trick. The one shown here is light and substantial; will lend glamour even to dime store odds and ends, and may be placed on top of a table, a chest of drawers or a desk.

If you do not have a saw to cut the scalloped frame, mark it on plywood and take it to the nearest woodworking shop to have it cut. You may have the straight boards cut at the lumber yard where you buy them. All you will have to do is screw them together; tack on the front frame and paint or stain to suit your room color scheme.

NOTE—A pattern for tracing the scallop design for this graceful shadow box frame; complete list of all materials needed and illustrated directions for making and finishing will be sent for 15 cents. Send your order to:

Watch Your Kidneys!Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging headache, persistent dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

DOAN'S PILLS

MY FRIEND FLICKA

by MARY OHARA

THE STORY SO FAR: Ten-year-old Ken McLaughlin, given an opportunity to choose any yearling on his family's Wyoming ranch, picks the filly of a "loco" mare. His father, a retired army officer, is disappointed by Ken's choice and by his failure at school. When Flicka, the filly, is badly hurt trying to jump the corral fence, Ken takes the opportunity to make friends with the wild little colt. But Flicka grows steadily worse, and Captain McLaughlin orders Gus, the foreman, to shoot her. Ken goes out to the pasture when the others are asleep and finds Flicka trapped in a stream but alive. He wades into the stream and holds her head out of the water.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER XVIII

Gus stood up, slowly, the gun in his hand, and stood there, hesitating. He had received his orders. He was to shoot Flicka some time soon, when Ken was not around. There would never be a better moment.

A minute or so passed, while the Swede stood looking down at the filly and pondering the situation. Then, straightening up, he put the Winchester in the crook of his left arm, raised his eyes to scan the sky and read the weather signs, and his hands automatically fumbled in his clothing for his pipe, tobacco, and matches. A few puffs of his pipe would help him to think this out. That the filly might actually recover was hardly likely. He wondered how long Ken had been holding her—there was no telling—they were all familiar with Ken's habits—he might have been there since dawn.

He found that his mind had made itself up while he stood there smoking. He would not shoot Flicka just yet. Perhaps, by the time Ken had had his breakfast and got warmed up, he might have something to say that would change his father's mind.

The man walked back up the little path, and on to the bunk house.

Ken's condition had been growing steadily worse. In spite of the hot blankets, chills shook him every few minutes until his teeth chattered. His temperature was 103 when Nell put him to bed. By noon it was 104.

Much of the time he slept, or, at least, thought Nell as she sat beside the bed, holding one of his thin, helpless-looking hands in both of hers, he was in some sort of unconsciousness.

She wondered if the filly was alive or dead. And then came a deeper wonder, at the way the lives of the two, boy and filly, seemed intertwined.

The day grew darker and more gloomy. Once, there was a sudden sound like the soft rolling of a corps of drums—a mere whisper. Nell went to the window and saw that it was rain. It rolled to a crescendo, then died away in a murmur—not a minute in all. The sky was massed with low clouds.

The cure of a patient by a doctor is supposed to begin, they say, when the doctor sets his foot in the house.

When Nell heard the men's voices below and their steps on the stairs, she experienced an emotion that shook her so strongly that all her hardihood left her, and she covered her face with her hands for a moment. Then she lifted her head and went to the door to greet them.

Ken was tossing and muttering. He did not know the doctor.

As Dr. Scott made the examination he was told what had happened. That Ken's filly was ill—dying—and that Ken had gone down to her late the night before and had, apparently, been in the water most of the night, holding the horse in his arms.

"His school opens Monday—day after tomorrow," said Rob, ending on a question.

The doctor shook his head, said, "Not a chance," and put the covers back, parting the jacket of Ken's pajamas, and loosening the tie of the trousers, baring the narrow brown body, laying his fingers on it, tapping them.

"Perhaps by the end of the week?" asked Rob.

"Not likely," said Scott cheerfully. "Sometimes children surprise you; blow up something like this and then get right over it. But his fever is 104. He's got something—I don't know what yet."

For a few minutes there was silence.

The room was getting quite dark. Suddenly it was brightly lit by a shimmering of sheet lightning, and the doctor glanced at the window and said, "Gonna have some weather."

In the darkness that followed the lightning came a rush and a roar of wind that sucked through the Gorge, bent every tree on the Hill and slammed the kitchen door.

Nell lit the kerosene lamp and the doctor stood up and looked down at Ken. The boy's eyes were closed now, and he lay motionless, drawing rapid breaths through dry parted lips.

"He's a very sick boy," said Scott. "What is this? I saw Ken early last spring. What's happened to him this summer? I wouldn't know him for the same boy—it's not only this cold and fever—"

Nell and Rob looked at each other. It was not an easy question, there was so much to tell.

They went downstairs with the doctor and Rob said, "It's this horse that he's been breaking his heart about."

The doctor was puzzled. "Has he been sick before this?"

"Not sick exactly," said Nell, "but on an awful strain, because she's been sick."

Scott could see that Nell was anxious to get back to Ken. He put on his things. "I won't keep you, Mother" (he called all women Mother). "You want to get back to him. Rob, he's got to have some medicine right away."

"I'll follow you in to town," said Rob, "and bring it back." He reached for Nell, took her in his arms and hugged and kissed her. "Now don't worry so, darling, the kid'll be all right."

"Of course," said Nell. "I'll go back to him."

The doctor gave her some final instructions for Ken's care and went out with Rob.

Gus had gone about his work all day, thinking of Flicka. He had not been back to look at her. He had been given no more orders. If she was alive, the order to shoot her was still in effect. But Kenne was ill, McLaughlin making his second trip to town to buy medicines, and would not be back till long after dark. He did not know just what to do.

After Tim and Gus had their supper in the bunk house, they walked down to the creek. They did not speak as they approached the filly, lying stretched out flat on the grassy bank, just as Gus had left her; but their eyes were straining at her to see if she was dead or alive.

He might have been there since dawn.

She raised her head as they reached her.

"By the Powers!" exclaimed Tim. "There she is!"

She dropped her head, raised it again, and moved her legs and became tense as if struggling to rise. The men cheered her on. She rolled over on her belly, reached out her forefeet and scrambled halfway up.

"Yee whiz!" said Gus. "She got plenty strent yet."

"Hi!" cheered Tim. "She's up!"

But Flicka wavered, slid down again and lay flat. This time she gave notice that she would not try again by heaving a deep sigh and closing her eyes.

Gus took his pipe out of his mouth and thought it over. Orders or no orders, he would try to save the filly. Ken had gone too far to be let down.

"Ay'm goin to rig a blanket sling fur her, Tim, and get her on her feet and keep her up. If she's got a chance, that'll help. If she ain't it'll do no harm anyway."

While they were getting the tools, the post-hole digger and shovel, crowbar, ropes, and blanket, the downpour of rain came again. This time it was persistent. The two men went to the bunk house, put on their oilskins, and brought a couple of lanterns with them when they carried the stuff down to the creek.

Flicka was just as they had left her.

"She's sure goin to get another drenching," said Tim.

"Won't hurt her," said the Swede. "She bir out in tunderstorms since she bin born."

It took them an hour to rig the sling. They struck rocks in their digging which had to be pried out. Flicka was lying on a piece of level sward, only a little higher than the level of the creek. To the far side, the ground rose sharply behind her, in a steep hill which, on part of its surface, was a sheer slide of rock—another of the rock-slides which were characteristic of the terrain of the ranch.

The men set two tall and sturdy aspen poles deep into the ground on each side of the filly, then rolled her onto the folded blanket. The ends of the blanket were gathered and the rope tied on to them in a knot which, the more weight was on it, the tighter it was drawn. The tops of the posts were notched, and a crowbar laid across them. The end of each rope was passed through a hole bored through the post a few inches below the notch; and when everything was ready, Gus said, "Altogether, now—" They each pulled on their rope, and the blanket and filly rose off the earth together. When she had reached a height where her feet just lightly touched the earth, they let be, and fastened the ends of the ropes to the crowbar.

So she hung—not in the least disconcerted, and when Tim brought her a bucket of water, put her nose in it and drank.

While the two men were carrying the tools back to the tool house, the heavens let loose.

"We're in for it now," said Tim. "I didn't think it could last much longer."

"I'm glad we got de tarps stretched over dem stacks," said Gus. "De hay's not packed hard." When they reached the ranch house, he handed Tim the tools he was carrying. "I'm gonna stop here, Tim, and see if de Missus need anything—an fin' out how de little feller is—"

Tim went on without him, and Gus went into the kitchen, where the oil lamp was hung on the wall beside the stove, and removed his slicker.

Nell heard him stamping about and hurried downstairs.

"Is that you, Gus?"

"Ja, Missus—how is de little boy?"

"Oh, Gus, we don't know yet—he seems pretty sick." Nell's face was worn and anxious. Standing there, belted in her narrow gray flannel wrapper, she looked slim and childish. Her hair was loose on her shoulders, and she put up a hand and pushed it back with a weary gesture. "Gus—is Flicka dead?"

"No'm. Tim and I, we just got tru fixin her up in a blanket sling. She can't stand alone; but dere's life in her, and she reached for de bucket of vater and drank it down like a good von."

Nell's eyes sank to the floor, and she stood a moment in thought tapping her foot. "You didn't shoot her," she said, just thinking out loud. "Gus, did he—did Captain McLaughlin say you didn't have to shoot her?"

"No'm, he told me last night to find a time when Ken wasn't around and shoot her. But ven I found 'em like dat dis mornin'—I—I—"

"I know," said Nell quickly. "I know what you mean. Well—I'll tell Ken. Maybe it'll help him—it'll make him so happy that she's still alive. Gus, now you're here, I want you to set up a cot for me in Ken's room, so I can sleep there and take care of him. It's down in the cellar—you'll have to bring it up."

"I know vere it is, ma'm," said Gus soothingly. "Now you go up to de little boy, and I'll bring de cot up and set it up for you."

Nell ran upstairs, and found Ken's eyes wide open. He moved every few seconds, turning from one side to the other. His breath was shallow, often with long pauses between.

She sat on the edge of the bed, bent over him and smiled into his eyes with deep, penetrating love. The faintest smile appeared on his lips in answer. She smoothed the hair back from his forehead, then took one of his hands in both of hers and said, "Kenne—did you know that Flicka seems a little better? Gus has fixed a blanket sling for her, and they've got her up in it, and she drank some water when they held the bucket for her."

The boy's face changed as if a light had broken over it, and his lips moved, but no words came.

"Maybe—just maybe, darling—she'll live after all. We'll do the best we can—but you mustn't hope too hard."

Ken was trying to move his lips again. At last she heard the words, "But—Dad—gave—the—order—"

At that moment Gus entered the room carrying the cot. Then he brought the mattress; and as they set it up, Ken's eyes followed their movements.

Gus tip-toed to the side of his bed and looked down at him.

"De filly's up, Kenne—now you be good boy an' soon you be up too—"

"Gus—"

"Ja?"

"Did Dad tell you you didn't need to shoot her?"

"No, Kenne, but I ain't done it yet—and maybe he change his mind—"

Kenne's face changed. He closed his eyes and a look of dread and pain was upon his lips.

Gus tip-toed out of the room and presently Nell heard a whisper from the bed. "Mother?"

"Yes, darling."

"Where's Dad now?"

"He went to town, dear, to get some medicines the doctor ordered for you."

Ken said nothing more. He seemed to be sleeping, and Nell went quietly about the business of making up the cot for the night.

Presently he spoke again. "Will he be back soon?"

"Any time now, dear, I think."

Ken lay with eyes closed, but Nell, every time she looked at him, realized that he was tense, listening for the sound of the Studebaker roaring up the hill.

Rope and Twine Must Be Made to Last

Supply Is Short, Says Dept. of Agriculture

Farmers must preserve their rope and twine on hand carefully, because very little new can be obtained, the department of agriculture warns. Fibers for rope and twine that used to be imported from the Philippines and the Dutch East Indies are now unobtainable because of the war. Small quantities of henequen and sisal fibers are coming in from Mexico, Cuba and Haiti, but this supply will not aid the situation much.

Rope for agricultural uses will be made largely of jute, cotton and other substitute materials. To take the best care possible of your rope, the department gives the following advice:

1. Store it properly in a dry unheated building or room. It should be clean and dry before storing. Hang it in loose coils on a peg—not on the floor.
2. Avoid kinks. Kinks pulled through a restricted space will shear the fibers and weaken the rope.
3. Don't leave rope where battery acid, drying oils, etc., can damage it, or where animals can chew it.
4. Splices are stronger, and easier, on rope than knots.
5. Don't overload rope. Use the right size for the job.
6. Reverse rope, end for end, that runs through pulleys and tackle to equalize the wear.
7. Save wear on rope by reducing wear and abrasion that occurs when one rope chafes another, when it drags over sharp surfaces, or picks up sand, grit, etc., when it is dragged over the ground.

Binder twine will be very scarce this year, according to officials of the department. To make what you have go farther, they give the following precautions:

Ropes running through pulleys should be reversed end for end to equalize wear. (Picture from U. S. Soil Conservation service.)

1. Use twine only on mechanical binding equipment.
2. Keep all points on binding machines through which the twine passes in the best possible operating condition. This means touching up or repairing worn needles and other eyes, adjusting or replacing badly worn parts and weak or ineffective springs, keeping the cutter knife sharp, or replacing it if necessary. Such precautions are particularly pertinent when using twine made of substitute materials.
3. Tie larger bundles to use less twine.
4. Take care of your present supply—don't leave it out in the weather, or where rats can gnaw it.

New Chemical Kills

Lice on Cattle

A new chemical combination made up of two parts sodium fluosilicate, one part phenothiazine, and one part white flour, has been used successfully to destroy both chewing and sucking lice that infest cattle. In the experiments conducted at the N. Dakota agricultural experiment station, phenothiazine alone, merely diluted with equal parts of flour, in trials on 12 infested animals located in various parts of the state, resulted in a 100 per cent kill of both short-nosed and long-nosed sucking lice in every trial. However, it failed to kill chewing lice. When the sodium fluosilicate was added to the diluted phenothiazine, the mixture killed both chewing and sucking lice.

Pullet Losses Reduced

By Selective Breeding

Under ordinary conditions many poultrymen lose about 25 per cent of their pullets during the first year. In a test conducted by Dr. C. H. Bostian of N. C. State college, where matings were made from stock not bred for improved livability, the loss was 28 per cent. With another group of birds, kept under exactly the same conditions but from matings selected for improved livability, the loss was only 11%.

32 Basic Minerals

Only 32 minerals form the basic materials of 150 important industrial chemicals, says Collier's. Coal is used in 91 chemicals, sulphur 88, mineral salt 75, limestone 63, sulphide ores 32, brines 24, petroleum 23, natural gas 16, salt peter 13, potassium minerals 11 and gypsum 10.

Of the remaining 21 materials, each of them is used in less than 10 of these chemicals.

If you were to say the first bugle call of the day in the Army is "Reveille"—you'd be wrong. It's "First Call." But you probably know what cigarette gets first call with Army men—it's Camel. Tinley Park News

Mrs. Norman Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dini and daughter spent last Tuesday evening in Chicago visiting with the latter's nephew and cousin who was home on a furlough from Aberdeen, Maryland. The first fall meeting of the Bremen Home Bureau will be held on September 28 at the home of Mrs. DeChant, on 181st and Oak Park Avenue. Visitors are always welcome at these meetings.

Mrs. Fred Willman Sr. Pub. Chair.

The Christian Fellowship group of Tinley Park gave a farewell party for Mr. Orville Buck at his home on Monday evening, Sept. 13. There were about 35 of his friends from Tinley Park and Lincoln Estates present.

The first part of the evening was spent singing hymns and was followed with a Bible quiz. At the close of the evening Christian testimonies were given. A gift of money was presented Mr. Buck by his friends. Those who know Mr. Buck regret his leaving Tinley but know he is going with a glad heart and trusting in the Lord as his Captain.

A luncheon was served by his wife and the women of the group.

The Christian Fellowship group will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sodren, 17936 Oak Park Ave., Friday, September 17 at 8 p.m. Everyone is welcome to attend. Mr. James Fulton is quite ill at his home in Tinley.

The American Legion Auxiliary will hold a Card and Bunco party, October 20 at the Tinley Park school. We will not wait for the snow storm to disappoint us in having a grand time at the Card and Bunco party.

EVERY DRIVER CAN HELP

KEEP 'EM ROLLING

WAR, 1943 style, is war on wheels. Men, weapons and materials vital to victory must be moved swiftly, safely and without delay.

But each day accidents at grade crossings in America injure or kill 10 motorists and delay 38 trains a total of 23 hours—a drain on manpower and time that a nation at war simply cannot afford.

Will you, as a patriotic driver, enlist in the nationwide campaign now under way to stop these accidents? Here's how you can help:

1. Be extra careful—war-time careful—in all your driving.
2. Be especially alert when approaching a grade crossing.
3. Be sure the way is clear before you cross the tracks.
4. LOOK, LISTEN and LIVE!

Help keep 'em rolling the victory!

The Truth Is---

The truth is that despite all our aspirations and despite the moral strength which supports the effort of decent citizens to break tyranny and aggression of Axis outlaws, the United Nations do not possess either the legal authority of a posse or the permanence of a police force. So far they are little more than a new form of the traditional emergency alliances which history tells us fall to pieces when the immediate danger is past.

Majority of Americans have declared

In public opinion polls a great mat-themselfs in favor of an "international police" force. But the essential thinking which would make a genuine police force possible has not been done either by public or officials. What is known of Mr. Churchill's and Mr. Roosevelt's plans forecasts nothing more than something like a Pan American Union for the world, with the policing to be done by "task forces" of British, American, Russian or Chinese military, naval or air units co-operating, but only on a temporary basis and as agents of national governments.

Now we can blame the leaders for not carrying public thought along to more permanent forms of organization and action by the world community. But the leaders cannot go much beyond the thinking of the people. If the people will resist the demagogues who play upon nationalistic prejudices and suspicions and will form more definite resolves to support international morality—a real advance can be made toward a permanent police force with power and legal authority to keep the out-laws "under heel forever."

We Need The Free Press

"We need the same free, courageous press which pioneered the growth and built America if our nation is to combat successfully the obstacles with which we will be confronted in the post-war world," declared Attorney General George F. Barrett at the 10th annual picnic, Aug. 29, of Rockford newspaper workers, their families and friends. The Attorney General further said:

"As we approach and enter the post-war era, a free, open and full discussion of our problems is needed in the press of the nation. To fall short of this mark is to fail in our obligations as Americans. To falter at that time may cost us our liberties which would mean the destruction of our way of life.

"Today—at a time when the press should have all the paper it needs to inform the people of all the facts pertaining to the war—the volume of available newsprint is being curtailed. When the stories of the most radical happenings and changes in the world history are taking place, we find the press of the nation made the victim of pamphleteering bureaucrats in Washington, who are wasting paper in the same way they have squandered money and misused manpower.

"Federal bureaucrats in Washington are curtailing the supply of newsprint although, they, themselves are using millions of pounds of paper for useless pamphlets. These bureaucrats threaten further cuts in the supply of newsprint although according to facts and figures their own use of paper continues to mount.

"For example," said Barrett, in 1941 the Federal government contracted for 117,173,000 pounds of paper, although it actually used 208,900,000 pounds. In 1942 the government contracted for 187,850,000 pounds of paper and used 226,000,000 pounds. In 1943 the government has contracted for 350,000,000 pounds of paper which is sixty percent more than it actually consumed in 1941.

To cooperate with the Government's nation-wide campaign to save manpower, transportation, fuel and critical materials...you are asked

by the War Production Board to

CONSERVE ELECTRICITY

...as part of a voluntary program instituted by the War Production Board, the Office of Defense Transportation, the Petroleum Administration for War, the Solid Fuel Administration for War, the Office of War Utilities, and other governmental agencies.

THIS LETTER asks the cooperation of the power industry and its customers in a broad effort to release critical resources for war purposes. It was accompanied by requests from the Office of War Utilities for conservation of electricity by commercial, industrial and residential users.

We are asking all of our customers to cooperate with us in this program, and we will be pleased to assist them wherever possible to meet its objectives.

The program is not intended to reduce lighting in building entrances, interiors and hallways below levels consistent with public safety—nor should lighting for industrial plant protection be reduced. Light for reading or working should be maintained at levels consistent with eyesight conservation.

This Company is glad to do its part in this nation-wide plan of the War Production Board for the conservation of critical resources.

WAR PRODUCTION BOARD
WASHINGTON, D. C.

To Electric Utilities and their customers:

The War Production Board has proclaimed that maximum war production requires the greatest possible conservation of manpower, transportation, fuel, equipment, and critical material such as copper, steel, tungsten and many others—much greater than has been heretofore accomplished. It believes that this greater conservation can be accomplished by the voluntary cooperation of all citizens of our country in the effort. It has called for the institution of a program to effect savings on all home fronts by the Office of Defense Transportation, the Petroleum Administration for War, the Solid Fuel Administration for War, the Office of War Utilities, and other governmental agencies. These agencies have been developing the details of the conservation program.

Each principal industry and agency is organizing to carry the objective of the War Production Board to its members and they, in turn, to their customers so that the fullest conservation may be obtained. This is a definite challenge to each operating unit and each individual in the electric utility industry to do his or her share in backing up our fighting forces. We cannot exert maximum force against our enemies if waste on the home front is tolerated.

In the electric utility industry, the installed generating capacity, together with capacity now under construction, is ample to meet all foreseeable electric needs. But, it is essential to save the use of electricity wherever possible so as to reduce, directly or indirectly, the demands for materials, fuel, transportation, and manpower.

The Office of War Utilities, in consultation with representatives of the electric utility industry, both public and private, has developed a comprehensive program to achieve the objectives of the War Production Board within that industry.

The desired results will be obtained through the full cooperation of millions of people in the conservation program. With everyone contributing, the effect will be tremendous in hastening the day of Victory.

Sincerely yours,
J. A. Erig
Director
Office of War Utilities

SUMMARY OF THE VOLUNTARY CONSERVATION PROGRAM
REQUESTED BY THE OFFICE OF WAR UTILITIES

Commercial and industrial establishments have been given requests from the Office of War Utilities for conservation in the use of electricity for—

- Indoor and outdoor advertising, promotional and display sign lighting—
- Decorative and ornamental lighting, including decorative flood lighting—
- Show window lighting which does not provide essential interior illumination—
- Lighting of marquees (other than advertising signs) and building entrances—
- Lighting of outdoor business establishments—
- General interior illumination and show case lighting.

In addition to these requests, general conservation in unnecessary use of electricity has been asked of all commercial, industrial and residential users. Among these are less reduction in temperature and relative humidity in air conditioning, elimination of waste in use of various electric appliances such as refrigerators, ranges, space heaters, water heaters, and reduction in use of white way street lighting to lower levels consistent with public safety.

It is pointed out that in order to conserve critical materials used in the manufacture of light bulbs, the desired reduction in lighting should be obtained primarily by turning off lights which are not necessary rather than by substituting lower wattage lamps. Lamp bulbs should not be replaced until completely burned out.

Likewise, no effort is being made to curtail necessary military, aviation and police lighting, lighting essential to public health, including eyesight conservation and safety, plant protection, transportation and production purposes.

As outdoor recreational activities are considered essential for wartime morale, the use of electric energy necessary for this purpose is not being discouraged, although such economies are urged as can be achieved in these fields without impairment of function.

Stretching Your Meat
By Simple Addition

By BETTY BARCLAY

Don't worry about those little red coupons. Stretch your meat into delicious, main-course dishes by combining it with other healthful foods that are not rationed. Here are some swell suggestions right off our sizzling war-time griddle:

Kidney Stew with Cereal Dumplings

- 1 pound beef, veal, lamb, or pork kidneys
- 2 tablespoons butter or other fat
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups water
- ½ cup minced onions
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Dash of pepper
- ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 recipe Cereal Dumplings
- Wash kidneys thoroughly. Split in halves lengthwise and remove fat and tubes. Soak in cold salted water ½ to 3 hours; rinse, drain, and dry thoroughly. If kidneys are old or large, cover with cold water, bring slowly to a boil, and drain. Cut kidneys in ¼-inch slices.
- Saute kidney slices in fat 3 minutes. Add flour and cook 3 minutes longer, stirring constantly. Add water, onions, and seasonings and bring to simmering point. Add Cereal Dumplings. Cover and simmer 15 minutes. Serve immediately. Serves 5 to 6.

Cereal Dumplings

- ½ cup milk
- 1 tablespoon shortening
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Dash of pepper
- 1 egg, well beaten
- 2½ cups 40% Bran Flakes, finely crushed
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- Scald milk and add shortening. Remove from fire. Add salt, pepper, and egg, mixing well. Add bran flakes and onion, and mix thoroughly. Shape into 1-inch balls. Drop dumplings into simmering meat stew, cover, and simmer 15 minutes. Makes 15 dumplings.

Baked Heart

- 2 tablespoons butter or other fat
- 1 cup sliced onions
- 1 cup finely cut celery
- 1 cup Grape-Nuts
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoon pepper
- 2 whole cloves
- Few drops Tabasco sauce

Wash heart thoroughly. Remove veins and arteries. Cut in about 6 pieces. Simmer in salted water 1 to 1½ hours, or until tender. Drain and measure 1½ cups stock. Remove fat from heart and cut heart in ¼-inch slices.

Melt butter in skillet; add onions and celery and saute until tender. Add ¼ cup Grape-Nuts. Combine with heart, stock, and seasonings. Turn into baking dish and sprinkle with remaining cereal. (If desired, garnish with thin onion rings which have been brushed with melted butter and paprika. Brush rings again during baking.) Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 40 minutes. Serves 4 to 6.

Tamale Pie

- ½ cup diced onion
- 1 tablespoon butter or bacon fat
- 1½ teaspoons chili powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¾ cup milk
- ½ cup Grape-Nuts Wheat-Meal
- ½ cup chopped cooked chicken, ham, or veal
- ½ cup drained kernel corn
- ¾ cup chili sauce
- Saute onion in fat about 5 minutes, or until tender but not browned. Add chili powder, salt, and milk. Bring to a boil, add Wheat-Meal gradually, and cook 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Add meat, corn, and chili sauce; mix well. Turn into greased 9 x 4 x 2-inch baking dish. Brush top with melted fat. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 25 minutes. If necessary, place under broiler to brown. Cut into squares. Serves 3 to 4.

Post Toasties Meat Loaf

- 3 cups corn flakes
- ¾ cup milk
- 1 egg, unbeaten
- 1 cup ground cooked veal
- 1 cup ground cooked pork (fat removed)
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- 1 teaspoon sage
- ¾ cup diced celery
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 1 teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons ketchup
- Crush cereal slightly; add milk and egg. Add remaining ingredients in order given; mix well. Pack into greased 8 x 4 x 3-inch loaf pan. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 1 hour. Makes 12 slices.

EVERY DRIVER CAN HELP

KEEP 'EM ROLLING

WAR, 1943 style, is war on wheels. Men, weapons and materials vital to victory must be moved swiftly, safely and without delay.

But each day accidents at grade crossings in America injure or kill 10 motorists and delay 38 trains a total of 22 hours—a drain on manpower and time that a nation at war simply cannot afford.

Will you, as a patriotic driver, enlist in the nationwide campaign now under way to stop these accidents? Here's how you can help:

1. Be extra careful—warlike careful—in all your driving.
2. Be especially alert when approaching a grade crossing.
3. Be sure the way is clear before you cross the tracks.
4. LOOK, LISTEN and LIVE!

Help keep 'em rolling for victory!

The Truth Is---

The truth is that despite all our aspirations and despite the moral strength which supports the effort of decent citizens to break tyranny and aggression of Axis outlaws, the United Nations do not possess either the legal authority of a posse or the permanence of a police force. So far they are little more than a new form of the traditional emergency alliances which history tells us fall to pieces when the immediate danger is past.

Jority of Americans have declared in public opinion polls a great mat-hemself in favor of an "international police" force. But the essential thinking which would make a genuine police force possible has not been done either by public or officials. What is known of Mr. Churchill's and Mr. Roosevelt's plans forecasts nothing more than something like a Pan American Union for the world, with the policing to be done by "task forces" of British, American, Russian or Chinese military, naval or air units co-operating, but only on a temporary basis and as agents of national governments.

Now we can blame the leaders for not carrying public thought along to more permanent forms of organization and action by the world community. But the leaders cannot go much beyond the thinking of the people. If the people will resist the demagogues who play upon nationalistic prejudices and suspicions and will form more definite resolves to support international morality—a real advance can be made toward a permanent police force with power and legal authority to keep the out-laws "under heel forever."

We Need The Free Press

"We need the same free, courageous press which pioneered the growth and built America if our nation is to combat successfully the obstacles with which we will be confronted in the post-war world", declared Attorney General George F. Barrett at the 10th annual picnic, Aug. 29, of Rockford newspaper workers, their families and friends. The Attorney General further said:

"As we approach and enter the post-war era, a free, open and full discussion of our problems is needed in the press of the nation. To fall short of this mark is to fail in our obligations as Americans. To falter at that time may cost us our liberties which would mean the destruction of our way of life.

"Today—at a time when the press should have all the paper it needs to inform the people of all the facts pertaining to the war—the volume of available newspaper is being curtailed. When the stories of the most radical happenings and changes in the world history are taking place, we find the press of the nation made the victim of pamphleteering bureaucrats in Washington, who are wasting paper in the same way they have squandered money and misused manpower.

"Federal bureaucrats in Washington are curtailing the supply of newsprint although, they, themselves are using millions of pounds of paper for useless pamphlets. These bureaucrats threaten further cuts in the supply of newsprint although according to facts and figures their own use of paper continues to mount.

"For example," said Barrett, in 1941 the Federal government contracted for 117,173,000 pounds of paper, although it actually used 208,900,000 pounds. In 1942 the government contracted for 187,850,000 pounds of paper and used 226,000,000 pounds. In 1943 the government has contracted for 350,000,000 pounds of paper which is sixty percent more than it actually consumed in 1941.

Stretching Your Meat By Simple Addition

By BETTY BARCLAY

Don't worry about those little red coupons. Stretch your meat into delicious, main-course dishes by combining it with other healthful foods that are not rationed. Here are some swell suggestions right off our sizzling war-time griddle:

Kidney Stew with Cereal Dumplings

1 pound beef, veal, lamb, or pork
Kidneys
2 tablespoons butter or other fat
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups water
1/2 cup minced onions
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 recipe Cereal Dumplings
Wash kidneys thoroughly. Split in halves lengthwise and remove fat and tubes. Soak in cold salted water 1/2 to 3 hours; rinse, drain, and dry thoroughly. If kidneys are old or large, cover with cold water, bring slowly to a boil, and drain. Cut kidneys in 1/4-inch slices.
Saute kidney slices in fat 3 minutes. Add flour and cook 3 minutes longer, stirring constantly. Add water, onions, and seasonings and bring to simmering point. Add Cereal Dumplings. Cover and simmer 15 minutes. Serve immediately. Serves 5 to 6.

Cereal Dumplings

1/2 cup milk
1 tablespoon shortening
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 egg, well beaten
2 1/2 cups 40% Bran Flakes, finely crushed
1 tablespoon minced onion
Scald milk and add shortening. Remove from fire. Add salt, pepper, and egg, mixing well. Add bran flakes and onion, and mix thoroughly. Shape into 1-inch balls. Drop dumplings into simmering meat stew, cover, and simmer 15 minutes. Makes 15 dumplings.

Baked Heart

1/2 beef heart (about 2 pounds)
2 tablespoons butter or other fat
1 cup sliced onions
1 cup finely cut celery
1 cup Grape-Nuts
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 whole cloves
Few drops Tabasco sauce

Wash heart thoroughly. Remove veins and arteries. Cut in about 6 pieces. Simmer in salted water 1 to 1 1/2 hours, or until tender. Drain and measure 1 1/2 cups stock. Remove fat from heart and cut heart in 1/4-inch slices.

Melt butter in skillet; add onions and celery and saute until tender. Add 1/2 cup Grape-Nuts. Combine with heart, stock, and seasonings. Turn into baking dish and sprinkle with remaining cereal. (If desired, garnish with thin onion rings which have been brushed with melted butter and paprika. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 40 minutes. Serves 4 to 6.

Tamale Pie

1/2 cup diced onion
1 tablespoon butter or bacon fat
1 1/2 teaspoons chili powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup Grape-Nuts Wheat-Meal
1/2 cup chopped cooked chicken, ham, or veal
1/2 cup drained kernel corn
1/4 cup chili sauce

Saute onion in fat about 5 minutes, or until tender, but not browned. Add chili powder, salt, and milk. Bring to a boil, add Wheat-Meal gradually, and cook 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Add meat, corn, and chili sauce; mix well. Turn into greased 9 x 2-inch baking dish. Brush top with melted fat. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 25 minutes. If necessary, place under broiler to brown. Cut into squares. Serves 3 to 4.

Post Toasties Meat Loaf

3 cups corn flakes
1/2 cup milk
1 egg, unbeaten
1 cup ground cooked veal
1 cup ground cooked pork (fat removed)
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon minced onion
1/2 teaspoon sage
1/2 cup diced celery
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 tablespoons ketchup
Crush cereal slightly; add milk and egg. Add remaining ingredients in order given; mix well. Pack into greased 8 x 4 x 3-inch loaf pan. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 1 hour. Makes 12 slices.

To cooperate with the Government's nation-wide campaign to save manpower, transportation, fuel and critical materials...you are asked

by the War Production Board to

CONSERVE ELECTRICITY

...as part of a voluntary program instituted by the War Production Board, the Office of Defense Transportation, the Petroleum Administration for War, the Solid Fuel Administration for War, the Office of War Utilities, and other governmental agencies.

THIS LETTER asks the cooperation of the power industry and its customers in a broad effort to release critical resources for war purposes. It was accompanied by requests from the Office of War Utilities for conservation of electricity by commercial, industrial and residential users.

We are asking all of our customers to cooperate with us in this program, and we will be pleased to assist them wherever possible to meet its objectives.

The program is not intended to reduce lighting in building entrances, interiors and hallways below levels consistent with public safety—nor should lighting for industrial plant protection be reduced. Light for reading or working should be maintained at levels consistent with eyesight conservation.

This Company is glad to do its part in this nation-wide plan of the War Production Board for the conservation of critical resources.

WAR PRODUCTION BOARD
WASHINGTON, D. C.

To Electric Utilities and their customers:

The War Production Board has proclaimed that maximum war production requires the greatest possible conservation of manpower, transportation, fuel, equipment, and critical material such as copper, steel, tungsten and many others—much greater than has been heretofore accomplished. It believes that this greater conservation can be accomplished by the voluntary cooperation of all citizens of our country in the effort. It has called for the institution of a program to effect savings on all home fronts by the Office of Defense Transportation, the Petroleum Administration for War, the Solid Fuel Administration for War, the Office of War Utilities, and other governmental agencies. These agencies have been developing the details of the conservation program.

Each principal industry and agency is organizing to carry the objective of the War Production Board to its members and they, in turn, to their customers so that the fullest conservation may be obtained. This is a definite challenge to each operating unit and each individual in the electric utility industry to do his or her share in backing up our fighting forces. We cannot exert maximum force against our enemies if waste on the home front is tolerated.

In the electric utility industry, the installed generating capacity, together with capacity now under construction, is ample to meet all foreseeable electric needs. But, it is essential to save the use of electricity wherever possible so as to reduce, directly or indirectly, the demands for materials, fuel, transportation, and manpower.

The Office of War Utilities, in consultation with representatives of the electric utility industry, both public and private, has developed a comprehensive program to achieve the objectives of the War Production Board within that industry.

The desired result will be obtained through the full cooperation of millions of people in the conservation program. With everyone contributing, the effect will be tremendous in hastening the day of Victory.

Sincerely yours,

J. A. Krug
Director
Office of War Utilities

SUMMARY OF THE VOLUNTARY CONSERVATION PROGRAM
REQUESTED BY THE OFFICE OF WAR UTILITIES

Commercial and industrial establishments have been given requests from the Office of War Utilities for conservation in the use of electricity for—

Indoor and outdoor advertising, promotional and display sign lighting—
Decorative and ornamental lighting, including decorative flood lighting—
Show window lighting which does not provide essential interior illumination—
Lighting of marquees (other than advertising signs) and building entrances—
Lighting of outdoor business establishments—
General interior illumination and show case lighting.

In addition to these requests, general conservation in unnecessary use of electricity has been asked of all commercial, industrial and residential users. Among these are less reduction in temperature and relative humidity in air conditioning, elimination of waste in use of various electric appliances such as refrigerators, ranges, space heaters, water heaters, and reduction in use of white way street lighting to lower levels consistent with public safety.

It is pointed out that in order to conserve critical materials used in the manufacture of light bulbs, the desired reduction in lighting should be obtained primarily by turning off lights which are not necessary rather than by substituting lower wattage lamps. Lamp bulbs should not be replaced until completely burned out.

Likewise, no effort is being made to curtail necessary military, aviation and police lighting, lighting essential to public health, including eyesight conservation and safety, plant protection, transportation and production purposes.

As outdoor recreational activities are considered essential for wartime morale, the use of electric energy necessary for this purpose is not being discouraged, although such economies are urged as can be achieved in these fields without impairment of function.

"Electricity has gone to war—don't waste it!"

MOKENA

Women's Service Club News
by Mrs. Leslie Clark

The members of the Mokena Women's Service club are sincerely grateful for the splendid co-operation they have received from the people of the community, in their drive for funds to be used to send Christmas boxes to our boys in the armed forces.

We also want to thank everyone who in anyway helped to make the card and bunco party the great success that it was. To Mrs. George Bennett who was general chairman and to her committee who worked so diligently, our sincere thanks.

We know you will feel a personal satisfaction in knowing you have helped to bring a bit of Christmas happiness to our boys. For some this will be their second and third Christmas away from home, other it will be their first but which ever it is, they will have a box to let them know that the people at home are thinking about them, and we know from past experience that means a great deal.

Pfc. Clarence Werner has returned to Camp Polk, La., after a 12 day furlough at home.

Corp. Robert Clark spent the week end at home.

Hans Muehler was inducted into the Navy and will leave next Tuesday for his boot training.

A. S. Norval Robinson is enjoying a short furlough home, he is stationed at Farragut, Idaho.

Mrs. Grace Raffauf spent 5 days with her son Cadet James in St. Louis, Mo. Mrs. Raffauf attended his graduation from an Air student to a Cadet at the Washington University, also on Saturday evening was his guest at the graduation dance held on the roof of the Chase Hotel in St. Louis.

Cadet James Raffauf left St. Louis Monday morning for San Antonio, Texas, where he will take up his pre flight training.

Mokena Bowling News

Last Monday night the Mokena State Bank team won three games from Braun's Recreation team and are leading the league by one game after the first night of bowling. The bankers displayed power as Wally Meeks, Willard Marti, Wes Cappel and Everett Cooper came through with high scores, and gave them the best pin team for the night.

The Mokena Oilers also exhibited power as they downed the Mokena Wallpaper Co., for two games. The Oilers won the first two games then dropped the last one when the paperhangers stole some of the Oilers thunder to win handily.

The V-Bighters took two games from Robinson's Tavern as the Robins were off form. Neither team showed any display of power.

Cpl. and Mrs. Wm. Morgan and son arrived in Mokena last week, while Cpl. Morgan has a few weeks furlough from his camp at Galveston, Texas.

A son was born Monday in Silver Cross hospital to Pvt. and Mrs. Al Agazzi. Mrs. Agazzi is making her home with her sister Mrs. Ed Walsh while her husband is serving in the armed forces.

Mrs. Florence Steele is serving on the grand jury in Chicago.

Miss Elaine Spiess spent last week with her cousins June Voss and Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Schmuhl in Joliet.

Clifford Mahoney is ill in his home.

Dear Citizens of Mokena:

I wish to thank the citizens of Mokena and the Ladies Auxiliary of Wm. Martin Post 725 for sending me the paper. I sure appreciate it an awful lot. There is nothing like reading of the things that happen in Mokena and surrounding towns. I would have written sooner but the Infantry don't find much time off.

I was home on furlough in July. I met a buddy of mine who was home also. He is well known in Mokena. T Cpl. Raymond Helmke, it was great to see him again and talk about old times at Ft. Sheridan.

I also met a very good citizen of Mokena. Uncle Fred Robinson. I used to work with him. Give him my regards. Wish he could be with me now and talk about old times at Chicago Malleable Casting Company.

At the present time I am in the best of health. Although I have lost a few pounds in weight, but that is not due to training or the food, mostly the climate, over here and when I say hot, I mean just that; it's never been this hot at home.

I would appreciate it if this letter could be printed. Thanks again. I will write again when time permits.

A soldier,
Pfc. Marvin C. Hick

The ceremonies were in charge of the regular officers of the Unit. Mrs. Clista Margolis, 1st Vice Pres. and Membership chairman, has been very active and has already signed up 41 members which is nine in excess of last year. It is hoped by the officers that every eligible woman in the community will be enrolled into membership during the coming year. Following the meeting, refreshments were served.

Saturday, Sept. 11, Mrs. Earl Reish, Sr. and Mrs. Herman Kruspe attended the installation of officers of the Cook County Council of the American Legion Auxiliary which was held in the LaSalle hotel, Chicago.

Mesdames Reish, Yunker, Ballou, Kruspe and Knox attended the installation ceremonies of the Legion Auxiliary at Chicago Heights last Monday evening. The program was very interesting and colorful and was participated in by officers of Chicago Heights Post of the American Legion and the Junior Auxiliary. Mrs. Mae Leach, Past District Director of the 8th District was installing officer. Refreshments were served.

The RNA Laurel Camp 1796 will meet in the Legion Hall, Thursday September 23 at 8 p.m. Refreshments will be served by the members of the "White" team which was the loser in the Purple and White contest conducted during the months of June, July and August. All members are urged to attend.

The ladies of the WCSC of the Methodist church are making elaborate plans for their Annual Fall Festival, Bazaar and Supper which will be held Thursday, Oct. 7. The chairmen of the various bazaar departments have been hard at work soliciting and gathering material and a wide assortment of useful, valuable and interesting articles are assured for the various booths. The Committee in charge of the supper are also working on the details of that interesting feature and promise that this event will equal or surpass any of the many excellent repasts of former years.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Beagley and daughter Joyce visited Robert Yunker at the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet, Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Yunker attended the Peotone fair a week ago last Thursday and enjoyed the rodeo.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kay are expected back this weekend. They have been residents of Tucson, Ariz., the past months. Mr. Kay will resume his duties with the Wabash railroad.

Their son, Gordon, who is employed in an Airplane plant will remain in Arizona.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Beagley Jr. visited at the Rose Yunker home in Frankfort, Sunday evening.

ONE MINUTE to midnight! Tomorrow is almost here and America's forces are ready...at sea, on land, and in the air...plans for the new day are complete.

The railroads of America are also ready with plans for tomorrow, despite today's titanic war transportation task.

ROCK ISLAND'S Program of Planned Progress has proven the wisdom of planning. It has gone steadily forward for years, improving engines, cars, right-of-way, facilities...progress that has made possible the movement of traffic in hitherto undreamed of volume.

It's a crucial test...of men and equipment...but, even more crucial will be our task when peace dawn, and we will supply victorious America the transportation she and her millions of courageous sons will require and deserve.

This railroad is planning for that other tomorrow too...determined to become ever greater and more efficient, for...

...as yesterday, and today, so tomorrow ROCK ISLAND'S sole purpose is to provide the finest in transportation.

THE argument started in the locker room when Clarence Olcott, a former star in Blue, asked if any other college or university had produced as many brilliant ends as Yale had done in the last 50 years.

Supporters from several other universities came along to pick up the challenge, but when the smoke had cleared it seemed to the voting jury that Mr. Olcott had just about won his case.

It was Frank Hinkey, "the disembodied spirit," who began the parade of fine Yale ends around 1889.

Hinkey was a four-year All-American, one of the best ends of all time. Later on Olcott himself was a high class end and after that Tom Shevlin and Tod Rafferty came along to strengthen Yale's claim.

Both were great ends. After that John Reed Kilpatrick, now General Kilpatrick, came along to add further prestige to Eli's prominence on the flanks. Kilpatrick was a 200 pound track man who played football with a fire and fervor seldom equaled.

Yale then offered Doug Bomeisler, one of the game's deadliest tacklers in spite of a bad shoulder.

Shortly after Bomeisler left there were Fishwick and Scott and after these two there were Larry Kelly and Choo-choo Train, a strong combination.

Kelly was one of football's best receivers and Train one of the best defensive ends of his time.

Yale has had other good ends, including Comerfort. So the above is only a partial list. But when you have such names as Hinkey, Shevlin, Rafferty, Kilpatrick, Bomeisler, Fishwick, Scott, Kelly, Train, you have something to argue about.

Other Colleges

Michigan has had her Oosterbaan—Alabama her Hutson—Vanderbilt her Bomar and Wakefield—Stanford her Moscrip and Topping—while Notre Dame has had a fine general average from year to year.

Harvard had her Campbell and Hardwick, two of the best.

Among Notre Dame ends there was a stocky fellow named Knute Rockne. One of the best ends that football has known is now an umpire by the name of Cal Hubbard.

Before Big Cal became a tackle he was a great end at Centenary and Geneva. Bo McMillan rates Hubbard the best all-around football player he ever saw. Hubbard at 250 was as fast as a fast back. Both Army and Navy have sent more than a few high class wingmen to the field. Especially Army.

But if you care to go back as far as 1890, I believe the high average for able flankmen will go to Yale. I mean going away. And I almost forgot one Alonzo Stagg, now a top coach at 81.

If the argument had turned to the best passing colleges the contest would be much closer.

TCU can offer Sammy Baugh and Dave O'Brien. Lou Little at Columbia can present Sid Luckman and Paul Gornall.

Notre Dame and Michigan move well up with such men as Gus Dorais, George Gipp, Benny Friedman, not overlooking a young fellow by the name of Bertelli.

Duke had a star entry in Ace Parker, one of the best all-around backs that football has known.

But when you get down to what is technically known as "brass tacks," I think we have to slip the chaplet of wild apple blossoms to TCU in honor of Baugh and O'Brien, and to Columbia for Sid Luckman and Paul Gornall.

Big and Little Men

The arrival of Howard Schulz and Johnny Gee in the same ballpark shows again that any form of human anatomy can handle a job in sport. The contrast would be extended if we only had Peewee Reese and Rabbit Maranville around.

Schulz and Gee, placed end to end, cover 13 feet, 2½ inches of space. Maranville and Reese could only muster slightly over 10 feet.

The Pirate's Johnny Gee at 6 feet 8 inches is the tallest man I've ever seen in baseball. And the Dodgers Schulz at 6 feet 6½ inches is the next.

Babe Ruth weighed 253 pounds the year he knocked off his 60 homers, but Wee Willie Keeler at 118 had a lifetime batting average up with the Babe.

Herman Hickman, the new Army line coach, who weighed 280 at Tennessee, could outrun most of his fast backs.

Chigger Brown at Sewanee, weighing 110 pounds, played four years in the big time without an injury.

Tichenor through five years at Auburn and Georgia, weight 114, made all-southern quarterback four seasons.

Not overlooking Dave O'Brien, the TCU-Eagles star, who through six seasons of college and pro football was not even badly bruised. Fast, small men are hard to tackle solidly

PRACTICALLY no fight in ring history drew such unanimous condemnation as the recent Ray Robinson-Henry Armstrong set-to in Madison Square Garden.

The once-great Armstrong didn't have a thing. Most observers agreed that the match was a travesty on sport. The clients who paid $16.50 for a ringside seat figured the fight wasn't worth even the admittance taxes. The boys who paid $2.50 for seats were just as loud in expressing their disapproval.

It was a sad evening for many fight followers who had seen "Hammerin' Henry" in his prime. In our opinion, Armstrong was one of the greatest fighters, pound for pound, of all time. He was the only man in history ever to wear three divisional crowns simultaneously.

Robinson won the fight just as he pleased—but he made it as easy for Armstrong as possible. And sentiment may have entered the picture to some degree. The night of October 4, 1940, when Armstrong lost his welterweight crown to Fritz Zivic, Robinson was on the same card, making his professional debut. It was said that Ray broke down and cried when Henry lost his title, so much did he idolize the dethroned champ.

Brisk Workout

But sentiment ends with the opening gong. Robinson did little more than enjoy a brisk workout at the expense of the veteran. He handled Armstrong with a minimum of effort. He merely pecked away at his opponent, riddling him with an endless array of long lefts to the head.

Once in a while Robinson would shoot a right-hand punch to the head. Some of these blows landed, albeit with little force. But most of them went wide of their mark and by such margins that several critics were moved to observe that Ray was of no mind to punish the ex-champion unduly.

The New York press was rather bitter about the match. One commentator noted that "... we must exercise restraint and report that the thing was a priceless stinker, priced at $16.50 ringside and $2.50 for the cheap seats. The boys on the roof were robbed. Even if they got in on a pass." Another writer expressed the opinion that Robinson was a lovable character to let Henry stay.

Immediately after the fight Henry announced his plans for retirement. This wasn't a particularly startling pronouncement because Henry has said over and over again that he would retire. But like Sarah Bernhardt, he repeatedly postponed the day. He would hang up his gloves one day, then change his mind the next.

Changed Plans

To show that he was in the groove, Henry followed up his retirement announcement with word that he had reconsidered his decision to depart forever from the game. He said that he had decided to go through with his scheduled 10-round match with Slugger White of Baltimore.

Sam Lampe, White's manager, failed to agree. "I positively will not let White fight a blind man, and that is just what Armstrong is," Lampe declared. "Furthermore, I don't believe a boxing commission in the country would pass Henry as fit for the ring."

This time, though, Henry had some sort of a reason for reversing his decision. Joe Lynch, promoter of the Armstrong-White fight, threatened court action against Armstrong when he made public his plans to quit the game.

It might be more fitting if the paying customers would start court action against Lynch if he attempted to force the fight down their throats.

It's Like This Over There
By BOB TROUT
CBS News Reporter.

New York looks like a movie set, after London. Years of clothes rationing have made British civilians a little shabby. I thought Britain's women did a wonderful job of keeping themselves attractive on coupons, but the bright colors of Miss and Mrs. New Yorker's clothes made me blink. With one clothing coupon in England, a man can buy two handkerchiefs or one necktie or a one-fourth of a bathing suit. An "austerity" suit costs more than a half year's coupon allowance.

Britain's blitz days are over but London still hears the siren, sometimes two or three times a week. In London, it's never practice. The Germans haven't sent real bombing planes over London for a long time, only fighter bombers. They are speedy enough to avoid the defending fighters a fair proportion of the time. Their bombs cause pain and misery but don't slow British war production. Heavy RAF bombers which frequently visit Germany carry bombs that weigh 8,000 pounds. That is heavier than the German fighter-bombers that attack Britain.

The first American soldiers to arrive in the British Isles in this war landed in Northern Ireland. The secret was so well kept that most of the Irishmen who saw the troops didn't know who they were at first. Especially as they didn't look much like the Americans the Irish people have grown used to seeing at "the latest film at the cinema." Some of the Americans evened the score; they didn't know where they were.

The British have been very kind to the American soldiers, although rationing leaves them little with which to be kind. But courtesy and hospitality are not rationed. It's a real treat for an American correspondent in Britain to have lunch at a U. S. Army camp. Strange how that Army food is improved by the simple trick of eating it 3,000 miles from home. And eating it after some months of eating boiled brussels sprouts, boiled potatoes (boiling doesn't require precious grease). And sausages that are 37½ per cent meat—no more, by law.

Note on American influence in Britain: A British tabloid newspaper printed this advice in a column of recipes: "Some of you have been growing corn (maize), and now you can use it for a delicious dish which will make a real change for you. Remove the green leaves. Put the corn into boiling salted water, cover with a lid, and boil gently until soft. To test when cooked: squeeze a grain with your fingers. To serve: should the corn be too long for your vegetable dish with a lid, wrap it in a napkin, put on a plate or dish, and serve at once. Spread a very little margarine along the cobs, take both ends in your hands and gnaw the grains off. It is good fun."

Movies and theaters are doing a big business, and there always seems to be a "busker" available to entertain those who stand in line waiting for the doors to open. Theaters start usually at 6 p. m. so that playgoers can get home early, in case there is a "spot of bother." British reactions to certain scenes in featured American pictures are interesting. For instance, in "Major and the Minor," when Ginger Rogers broke an egg on Robert Benchley's forehead, groans went up from the British audience all over the house. But in "Sullivan's Travels," when Joel sniffs a frying pan containing five beautiful eggs, there were no groans. The entire audience, instantly and simultaneously, broke into a long loud sigh: "O-o-o-o-o-o."

In one rural area, U. S. troops who had built themselves a small movie theater invited the local townsfolk to join them in watching the pictures in the long cold winter evenings. Some of the local people had never seen a movie before. One 68-year-old man, much impressed by the elegance and luxury of the home-made "theater," said: "Why, they've even got a fire in there."

I saw "Watch on the Rhine" in London a couple of months ago. All the action takes place in Washington, and I had meant to notice whether the English cast spoke the lines with a Potomac accent. But I forgot to notice because all I could think of was that the actors constantly left the door open, spoiling the blackout.

In the summer, with the clock moved two hours ahead, Britain is not really dark until nearly midnight. But in winter blackout begins about five in the afternoon and the blackout is still on when you get up in the morning. Pedestrians are allowed to use flashlights if they have been dimmed by tying a handkerchief over the lens, and are pointed straight down at the ground—not ahead. But the blackout is kind to bashful lovers and amateur astronomers. For the first time you can see the stars from the city.

FARMING IS 'KNOW-HOW,' NOT MERE OWNERSHIP

THE VALUE OF ACRES as farm land is determined by the price at which the products of those acres can be sold, not for a year but over a considerable period of years. In 1917-18, with food products selling at extreme high prices, farm land prices—not values—doubled and trebled. Farmers mortgaged their home acres to buy more acres with the expectation of continued profits resulting from a continuance of high prices. Insurance companies and banks loaned money on the basis of those high land prices. They bid ravenously for the privilege of making such loans.

By 1921, with the war over and the edge taken off the food demand in Europe, the high prices for food products disappeared, but the unpaid mortgage was still hanging over the head of the farmer. At normal prices for his crops he could neither reduce the principal nor pay the interest. The land he had bought was not worth in peacetime what he had paid for it in wartime.

The farmer had gambled and lost. He had expected high food prices to continue, but could not control the law of supply and demand. The banks and insurance companies took over thousands of farms on which they could not realize the value of the money loaned.

Again there is a world-wide demand on America for food. Again there is an abnormal price for food products, though not nearly so high as the price of 1917-18. Again the price of farm land is shooting upward, but this time it is not the experienced farmer who is buying. Now it is the man from the city who is attempting to hedge on the threatened inflation. When it is all over, when the last shot has been fired, when the starving people of a war-torn world have been fed, when food prices are again back to normal, then it is probable the experienced farmer can add to his home acres at a bargain price. The city farmer, sadder and wiser, will be moving back to the city. He will have discovered that successful farming must have back of it a "know how."

FEDERAL PAYROLLS STILL GOING UP

THE NUMBER of bureaus of the federal government grew week by week by executive decree. Despite the efforts of the Byrd committee to reduce the civilian expenditures of the government, the number of civilian employees increase each month. As long as last December the total amounted to 2,665,000 and it is now well beyond the three million mark. To that great army of employees, the government paid as salaries in December a total of $436,950,000. Of that total of civilian employees, 290,000 are in Washington and, in addition, another 15,000 are employed by the District of Columbia. To that 290,000 the government paid in December the net sum of $52,200,000, to which the District of Columbia added $2,485,000.

The federal government has distributed throughout the states a total of 2,315,000 civilian employees, exclusive of those in Washington. Their job is largely that of regulating the activities of the American people.

In the number of civilian employees, the federal government is nearing, if it has not surpassed, the number of such employees of all of our local and state governments. Last December there were employed by all of our township, municipal, county and state governments a total of 3,237,000 people. That included county, municipal and state police forces and all school employees. To these employees was paid a total of $384,261,000 in December, as compared with the federal government's civilian payroll of $436,950,000. What the end is to be is definitely up to the American people.

RECOGNITION FOR CHINA

IT WOULD SAVE "FACE" for the only Chinese government we recognize if congress should grant to the Chinese the same immigration privileges granted people of nations other than those of the Orient. Under the quota system, as now established, 107 Chinese immigrants could enter the United States in any one year. The number is meaningless, but according China the same treatment as other nations means much to the Chinese. It would abrogate that idea of "white supremacy" from which China has suffered for many years. She has earned that recognition.

WHEN STATESMANSHIP must become subservient to the cheap game of politics it will be good-by to statesmanship and the republic will cease to function.

WE DO NOT NEED to care what form of government Germany or any other Axis nation may have so long as we are careful to see that they have no facilities or opportunity to again prepare for war. If they want a dictator, let them have one, but put a guard over the dictator.

Take eggs to the basement or other cool place immediately after gathering. Do not put them in the egg case until the following morning, for eggs cool slowly in a case.

Try mending torn oilcloth by bringing the edges together on the wrong side with adhesive tape, then pressing.

A quick and delicious sauce for ice cream or pudding is made by heating maple syrup and adding one-half cup nut meats to it just before serving.

When you cut buttons from garments, string them on a piece of embroidery thread and tie the ends. When you want buttons you won't have to hunt through a button-box to match them.

In sewing on buttons, place the knot between the buttons and material, which prevents the knot from becoming untied.

Chopped, crisp bacon may be added to your favorite muffin batter for a delicious Sunday morning treat.

Store coffee jars, once they are opened, in the refrigerator.

Before papering a room where there are greasy or soiled spots on the wall, add a coat of shellac to the spots if the wallpaper is tight on wall and there are no cracks. This prevents the spots from coming through on the new paper.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

There are about 400 kinds of trees and vines in the world that contain rubber latex, but Hevea brasiliensis, native of Brazil, is recognized as the best for commercial purposes.

Don't keep your car idle too long with the tires carrying the load. Drive it a short distance periodically. This flexes the tires and will prevent deterioration.

The Army is conserving rubber. It is estimated that by 1944 crude rubber requirements per vehicle will be cut 63 per cent as compared to the amount of rubber needed by the vehicle at the outbreak of the war.

Jones Was Handicapped In Not Knowing Neighbor

"Those new people across the road seem very devoted to each other," said Mrs. Jones to her husband who was well hidden behind a newspaper.

A rustle of the sheet was all the reply she received, but she was used to that.

"He helps her clear the table and wipes the dishes after supper. I just noticed that."

"H-m-m," and another rustle of the newspaper.

"Every time he goes out he kisses her, and goes on throwing kisses all down the road. Edward, why don't you do that?"

"Me?" snorted the man behind the news, "I don't know her!"

WHY TAKE HARSH LAXATIVES?

Simple Fresh Fruit Drink Makes Purgatives Unnecessary for Most People

Here's a way to overcome constipation without harsh laxatives. Drink juice of 1 Sunkist Lemon in a glass of water first thing on arising.

Most people find this all they need—stimulates normal bowel action day after day!

Lemon and water is good for you. Lemons are among the richest sources of vitamin C, which combats fatigue, helps resist colds and infections. They supply valuable amounts of vitamins B₁ and P. They pep up appetite. They alkalize, aid digestion. Lemon and water has a fresh tang too—clears the mouth, wakes you up, starts you going.

Try this grand wake-up drink 10 mornings. See if it doesn't help you! Use California Sunkist Lemons.

Forced to Break Up the Gang

In his Ottawa speech President Roosevelt used a metaphor which goes to the heart of all the peace plans. He said:

We have been forced to call out the sheriff's posse to break up the gang in order that gangsterism may be eliminated in the community of nations.

Have the United Nations really formed a posse? The common law's "posse comitatus" or power of the county, ordinarily describes a body of citizens summoned to preserve the peace under a legal authority which has not so far been established in the community of nations. So far we lack an international sheriff. What we have is more like a vigilante committee, with no sanction of legislature or court.

Now it is imperative for us to face the fact that a vigilante committee or even a posse is only a temporary body. Mr. Roosevelt spoke the thoughts of millions when he said "only a real and lasting peace can justify the sacrifices we are making." And he indicated that he expected the United Nations to achieve that result by "driving out the outlaws and keeping them under heel forever." But let us say it again: the United Nations have only the most vague and indefinite plans for keeping the outlaws under heel one minute beyond the day of victory.

Workers in a Michigan refinery fixed up a very low, false door leading to the pay office. On it is inscribed, "You will learn to duck lower if you don't Buy a Bond."

Come in and See this WARM MORNING COAL HEATER

Holds 100 Lbs. of Coal

It's the only heater of its kind in the world! Patented principles of construction produce steady, even heat... save work... save fuel. Burns any kind of coal... lump, nut or slack... also wood. Magazine semi-automatically feeds fuel as needed. Holds fire several days in mild weather without refueling.

Makes coke out of bituminous coal... then burns coke without smoke or soot. NO CLINKERS. Low in cost... exceedingly economical to operate.
